In an attempt to keep things line that seems to be going nowhere. All of a sudden, people appear out of nowhere and take it upon themselves to cut the entire thing up. Wanting to say, hey, we are spoiling everyone who has been waiting for 15 minutes, but it does not make any sense. Are you really in need of a flag to cheer on the Kimball food? Whooops, I broke my promise.

To the Editors:

On Friday, Sept. 14, numerous events related to the theme of national mourning and remembrance occurred on campus. One of the most poignant events that morning of the flag incident, I would like to turn our attention momentarily to one of the finest dining establishments on campus: Kimball. For once, there are concerns about Kimball that have nothing to do with the food. Thus, for the first time in the history of The Crusader, an article about Kimball will refrain from commenting on the quality of the food. Kimball is trying really hard to come up with new and “exciting” things, but this time, wettedillettes, cracker, undifiability, food jokes, and no stories about that...
