What would graduating with honors mean to you? Would it mean that you’ve earned a distinction, the right to be singled out for excellence because of your hard work and amazing mastery of the coursework? Or would it mean that you simply were among the 91 percent of students who did a paper or study on it, they’d find instances of such mockery stretching back almost to the beginning of the United States. In fact, laughter has a tendency to be a great medicine in times of tragedy like this - images and jokes about the Taliban’s form of Islam, I think you’d be hard pressed to find a holy man writing pro-war jokes late-
